Mr John McCarthy

During his diplomatic service at the Holy See, Mr McCarthy was closely involved with human rights issues, particularly the eradication of modern slavery and human trafficking: a cause which Pope Francis has made a worldwide priority. Mr McCarthy was also heavily engaged in conferences and consultations in Rome during 2015 in respect of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Mr McCarthy also was in frequent contact with the Roman Curia in respect of the plight of refugees in the Middle East and Africa and incidents and issues regarding religious freedom and religious persecution.

In ecumenical and interfaith relations at the Holy See, Mr McCarthy unfolded a new dimension through his initiative in establishing the St Peter's Cricket Club – the Pope's Cricket Team. The Papal Cricket Team has attracted much international media coverage.

As a special contribution to the Extraordinary Year of Mercy, the Archdiocese of Sydney, Australian Catholic University and Catholic Super Fund Australia adopted a proposal by Mr McCarthy to sponsor a triptych of art, music and poetry – "The Faces of Mercy" which was presented in Sydney and Rome and was broadcast nationally in Australia. It included the works of three prominent Australian artists, Principessa Niki Borghese (painter), George Palmer (composer) and Kevin Brophey (poetry) and included the performance of Amelia Farrugia (Opera Singer).

During the celebrations in 2013 to mark the 40th anniversary of Australian-Holy See diplomatic relations, Mr McCarthy commissioned a portrait of Pope Francis from the widely acclaimed Chinese-born Australian portrait artist Shen Jai Wei from Sydney. The portrait was presented to Pope Francis by Senator John Hogg – then President of the Australian Senate.

Mr McCarthy lives in Sydney and is married with 6 children and 6 grandchildren. He was a senior Barrister (Queens Counsel). He was briefed in many notable cases including the first recognition of Native Title on the Australian mainland. Mr McCarthy appeared for the indigenous people – the Dunghutti.

Mr McCarthy has been involved in many and varied public and Church affairs including university governance, sports and arts administration, legal and professional committees, and international and disaster relief activities.

He is a graduate in Arts/Law from the University of Sydney, where he served as a Fellow of the Senate (1995-2010) and Pro-Chancellor (2005-2010).

Dr Selena Ng

Born in Australia to Malaysian parents in 1980, Selena grew up in rural Victoria where her fascination with the origins and future of the universe led her via Monash University to a PhD in string theory at the University of Cambridge (2002).

Her focus on “where do we come from?” and “what will we become?” soon turned into “what do we want to become?” and “how will we go about getting there?”. An MBA at the Collège des Ingénieurs in Paris led her to join AREVA, a global leader in the nuclear power industry, in 2004.

Her career at AREVA has ranged from leading a France-US collaboration on nuclear non-proliferation to opening a regional office in Singapore to help countries in South-East Asia who are considering developing nuclear power (before and after the events at Fukushima in 2011) to do so in a safe, secure and sustainable way.

Since returning to Europe in 2013, Selena has turned her attention from strategy and business development to project management, first as project engineer then as head of contract management on the nuclear power plant under construction in France, a role that she has continued since 2016 on another nuclear power plant that AREVA is constructing in Finland.

Selena is a keen advocate of “teaching others to fish” and has been an active volunteer mentor/consultant in recent years in strategic planning for grassroots organizations in rural Benin and Malaysia, financial planning for domestic workers in Singapore, and self-esteem for less privileged teenagers in suburban Paris.

Her guiding aspiration is to create sustainable and positive change in all that she does: situations and people, profit and nonprofit, big and small.
